

FROZEN FRAUD. A WORLD Reporter Works Ten Days as an Iceman's Helper and Exposes the Ex-tortions Practised on Customers. WHO WILL WIN THE SUBURBAN? A DAY WITH A WOMAN CENSUS-TAKER. A STORY BY RUDYARD KIPPLING. MANHATTAN The Future Commercial Centre of the World. True Tale of a Pretty Typewriter. SEE THE SUNDAY WORLD.

OUR MARY'S WEDDING DAY. Mary called out of the room and left The World man standing alone for a few minutes. Dr. Griffin then made his appearance without much ado unburdened himself.

Miss Anderson Tells "The World" About Her Approaching Marriage.

An interesting interview with the charming actress in London.

The day is fast approaching on which Mrs. Anderson—"Our Mary"—is to become Mrs. Antonio De Navarro.

The wedding will occur at London Tuesday next, and will be a strictly private affair, simple in its style and with no witnesses save the immediate family.

Even the father of the lucky Tony de Navarro, Jose de Navarro, of this city, will not be present. At his office, 71 Broadway, he is informed an Evening World reporter.

Young Navarro, fell in love with the superb actress while she was playing in this city. There sprang up a close friendship between the two families, and Antonio was quickly recognized as Miss Anderson's accepted suitor.

He was even permitted to criticize her work in rehearsal, and his suggestions were religiously followed by "Our Mary."

When Miss Anderson left for Europe a year ago young Antonio was speedily seized with an illness that imperatively required a change of scene, and his mania accompanied him to Europe. He has prospered so that in the sunshine of his innamorata's eyes that is now almost stout.

MARY ANDERSON. Antonio Fernandez De Navarro is the second son of Jose F. De Navarro. He was born in 1885 in Washington Place, where his father still resides. Twenty-nine years ago and has resided there ever since. He was educated at Columbia College, graduating with honors and the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

He then went to finish his law studies with the firm of Hyland & Zabricki at 43 Broadway.

He was admitted to the bar in 1914 and was then taken into the firm and practicing as a partner. He is a native of Spain and speaks Spanish fluently.

He is a tall, slim, well-built young man and has the dark complexion, hair and eyes peculiar to the Spaniard. He is handsome and a very genial companion.

A World reporter visited Fernand, Hampton Heath, the London residence of "Our Mary's" stepfather, Dr. Griffin, and his wife, and had a long interview with Miss Anderson, in which the expectant bridegroom and Dr. Griffin participated.

When The World man came the bell Miss Anderson herself opened the door and a young man dressed in a suit of dark check, who said behind him, "I am Antonio."

"Oh, I beg your pardon, Tony," she said. "I thought I had married you."

"No, I am not married," he replied.

"Is Dr. Griffin at home?" The World man asked.

"He is not," she replied.

"Is he really with yourself Miss Anderson?" he asked.

"Yes, he is," she replied.

"You people in America are deeply interested in all that is going on in Europe, aren't you?" he asked.

"Yes, we are," she replied.

"What is the latest news from Europe?" he asked.

"The latest news is that the war is over," she replied.

"Is that so?" he asked.

"Yes, it is," she replied.

"What a relief!" he exclaimed.

"Yes, it is a relief," she replied.

"What a relief!" he exclaimed.

"Yes, it is a relief," she replied.

BULL CREEK'S FATAL RISE.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

MATINEE, Ky., June 1.—Nothing like the sudden and terrible rise of Bull Creek, six miles from here, in Thursday night's storm has ever been seen in this vicinity.

Thousands of people have been out to see the traces left by the cloud-burst and the flood, and all were appalled at the work of devastation wrought in so short a time.

Farmers in the vicinity assert that the water rose at the rate of two feet a minute after the cloudburst, and finally swept down in a solid mass twenty-five feet high, with a resistance force.

James Irwin's portable sawmill, several hundred yards up the creek, was lifted by the great rush of water and hurled against a stone culvert of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad.

A number of logs were at the same time thrown against the culvert and it is thought that this assault weakened the structure and prepared the way for its washing out and the consequent fatal plunge of a westbound train.

The train which went into the washout was made up of thirty-two cars, nineteen of which were loaded with coal. The engine, a powerful 4-6-0, was at the head of the train. The train was wrecked at a point where the creek crosses the railroad.

The bodies of the men were buried under the wreckage.

Along the banks of the swollen creek trees, fences and houses were swept aside by the water as wind might have swept chaff away.

Thunder and lightning added to the terror of the storm. Dick Dawson's barn and four Williams' dwelling were struck and burned.

The exact loss of life, aside from that in the railway wreck, is not known. Several people were killed. The bodies of several men were recovered. The bodies of several men were recovered.

The weather was stormy, with heavy rain and strong winds.

THE APPELLING WORK OF A CLOUD-BURST IN KENTUCKY.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

MATINEE, Ky., June 1.—Nothing like the sudden and terrible rise of Bull Creek, six miles from here, in Thursday night's storm has ever been seen in this vicinity.

Thousands of people have been out to see the traces left by the cloud-burst and the flood, and all were appalled at the work of devastation wrought in so short a time.

Farmers in the vicinity assert that the water rose at the rate of two feet a minute after the cloudburst, and finally swept down in a solid mass twenty-five feet high, with a resistance force.

James Irwin's portable sawmill, several hundred yards up the creek, was lifted by the great rush of water and hurled against a stone culvert of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad.

A number of logs were at the same time thrown against the culvert and it is thought that this assault weakened the structure and prepared the way for its washing out and the consequent fatal plunge of a westbound train.

The train which went into the washout was made up of thirty-two cars, nineteen of which were loaded with coal. The engine, a powerful 4-6-0, was at the head of the train. The train was wrecked at a point where the creek crosses the railroad.

The bodies of the men were buried under the wreckage.

Along the banks of the swollen creek trees, fences and houses were swept aside by the water as wind might have swept chaff away.

Thunder and lightning added to the terror of the storm. Dick Dawson's barn and four Williams' dwelling were struck and burned.

The exact loss of life, aside from that in the railway wreck, is not known. Several people were killed. The bodies of several men were recovered. The bodies of several men were recovered.

The weather was stormy, with heavy rain and strong winds.

IT MAY BREAK THE ICE TRUST.

Should any irreverent small boy chant "Down Went Melville to the Bottom of the Hole" in the hearing of one of New York's haughty ice barons to-day, he would have to hasten to avoid getting his ears boxed.

The ice trust has received a heavy blow, and every housewife on Manhattan Island would gleefully turn thumbs down if its ultimate fate were submitted to their suffrage.

A plot of the frozen cubes has taken the place of the carefully nurtured scarcity in the local market, and prices have gone down with celerity.

Two causes have combined to break the back of the ice monopoly. In the first place the plea of scarcity at the source of supply has been proven false, and the thrifty harvesters on the banks of the Penobscot, the Piscataquis and the Passumpsic have cut the ice in the local market, and prices have gone down with celerity.

Two causes have combined to break the back of the ice monopoly. In the first place the plea of scarcity at the source of supply has been proven false, and the thrifty harvesters on the banks of the Penobscot, the Piscataquis and the Passumpsic have cut the ice in the local market, and prices have gone down with celerity.

MAINE MEN'S STACKS MEAN PLENTY OF CHEAPER ICE.

Next Friday the day for the London Police Striki.

Unless the Men's Demands Are Met Before Then.

The situation is a critical one. The force begins to show signs of demoralization. The chiefs who still endeavor to maintain discipline and hold the men to their duty are discredited by their treatment by the Home Department, and threaten to resign.

The situation is a critical one. The force begins to show signs of demoralization. The chiefs who still endeavor to maintain discipline and hold the men to their duty are discredited by their treatment by the Home Department, and threaten to resign.

THE STORY OF A PRETTY NEW YORK TYPEWRITER.

It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter.

JAPAN'S A SUNDAY WORLD.

Exhibition Now Being Held in Japan, and Shows New Light on a Strange Country.

JANVRIN'S SECOND SHOT.

An Ex-Policeman Again Unsuccessfully Attempts Suicide.

Daniel M. Janvrin is locked up in the Tremont station-house, charged with shooting himself. He married a servant employed at 1000 Washington avenue last Monday night, and because one of the boarders made some remarks reflecting on Mrs. Janvrin's fidelity, he shot her.

THE STORY OF A PRETTY NEW YORK TYPEWRITER.

It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter.

JAPAN'S A SUNDAY WORLD.

Exhibition Now Being Held in Japan, and Shows New Light on a Strange Country.

JANVRIN'S SECOND SHOT.

An Ex-Policeman Again Unsuccessfully Attempts Suicide.

Daniel M. Janvrin is locked up in the Tremont station-house, charged with shooting himself. He married a servant employed at 1000 Washington avenue last Monday night, and because one of the boarders made some remarks reflecting on Mrs. Janvrin's fidelity, he shot her.

THUNDER CALLED US EARLY.

Twin Cities Frowned by an Awful Electric Storm This Morning.

A Bright and Beautiful Sunday Promised by the Weather Bureau.

The weather had the same in the early hours of this morning, and Mr. Alax and the Lightning released their most thrilling scene right over this town.

Mr. Tutt is a truthful young man, who lives in Fifty-third street and keeps regular hours. Mr. Tutt describes the little difficulty in these graphic words:

"I don't know what awakened me, but I sat up in bed and tried to catch a foot of Alax's belt. It was a ball of fire about twice as big as my head, and it came through the window of my bedroom."

"Then I saw a flash of lightning, and a quarter of an hour later the lightning struck the house and the lightning struck the house and the lightning struck the house."

HER MISSION WAS VENGEANCE.

The Motive of the Opium Fiends Beautiful Nemesis.

Both Her Father and Brother Had Died from the Drug.

Fear of being harmed by the friends of the opium king kept her in the early hours of this morning, and Mr. Alax and the Lightning released their most thrilling scene right over this town.

RACING POINTERS.

Opinions of the Tipsters as to the Winners at Morris Park.

Before, in the Sporting World, makes these selections:

First Race—Nigara, Now or Never, Second Race—Belmont, Admiral, Third Race—Belle of Nantux, 1; Belle of Nantux, 2; Belle of Nantux, 3.

THE STORY OF A PRETTY NEW YORK TYPEWRITER.

It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter.

JAPAN'S A SUNDAY WORLD.

Exhibition Now Being Held in Japan, and Shows New Light on a Strange Country.

JANVRIN'S SECOND SHOT.

An Ex-Policeman Again Unsuccessfully Attempts Suicide.

Daniel M. Janvrin is locked up in the Tremont station-house, charged with shooting himself. He married a servant employed at 1000 Washington avenue last Monday night, and because one of the boarders made some remarks reflecting on Mrs. Janvrin's fidelity, he shot her.

THE STORY OF A PRETTY NEW YORK TYPEWRITER.

It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter.

JAPAN'S A SUNDAY WORLD.

Exhibition Now Being Held in Japan, and Shows New Light on a Strange Country.

JANVRIN'S SECOND SHOT.

An Ex-Policeman Again Unsuccessfully Attempts Suicide.

Daniel M. Janvrin is locked up in the Tremont station-house, charged with shooting himself. He married a servant employed at 1000 Washington avenue last Monday night, and because one of the boarders made some remarks reflecting on Mrs. Janvrin's fidelity, he shot her.

CHENEYNE REIGN OF TERROR.

Rascally Redskins Still Out and on the Warpath.

Militia May Be Called to Aid the Government Troops.

Col. Dan Lamont and his Whitney-Elkins syndicate have just made another important move in their scheme to gobble up the New York and Pennsylvania railroads.

In other words, the little cross-town road known as the Hamilton, West Street and Pennsylvania Ferry Railroad Company, whose capital stock is only $250,000, has obtained a leave for an indefinite period of the Broadway and Seventh Avenue Railroad Company and all its branches, which represents a capital stock of $2,100,000.

Col. Lamont is President of the Hamilton street line and of several other small companies already controlled by the syndicate. The latest acquisition will doubtless give the combination an immense boom and materially assist it in carrying out its great scheme for gridironing Gotham with cable roads.

This latest deal has been under negotiation for some time, so that its final consummation is not entirely a surprise to the public.

The virtual head of the Broadway Railroad was Mr. Whitney himself, and among those who were in the syndicate were Mr. Lamont and William L. Elkins, members of the Philadelphia branch of the syndicate, so that the present deal is merely the effect of the consolidation of the various interests of the syndicate under a single management, with Col. Lamont at its head.

According to the terms of the agreement, the Hamilton street line will increase its capital stock, immediately to $5,000,000, and assume all the obligations of the Hamilton street line, which were heavily encumbered by the guaranteeing of the principal and interest of several other lines which it controlled.

Meetings of the stockholders of both the Hamilton and West Street, and the Broadway and Seventh Avenue Railroad Company were held yesterday, at which a large majority of the stock in both companies was voted in favor of the deal.

Col. Lamont is President of the new combination, and Mr. Whitney is its vice-president. It is only a question of time now when the deal will be consummated, and the syndicate will be in a position to control the Hamilton street line, and then the Hamilton street line will be in a position to control the Hamilton street line.

BROADWAY IN THE GRIDIRON.

Little Lamont the Biggest Surface Railway King in Town.

Broadway and Seventh Avenue Lines Leased to the Syndicate.

Col. Dan Lamont and his Whitney-Elkens syndicate have just made another important move in their scheme to gobble up the New York and Pennsylvania railroads.

THE STORY OF A PRETTY NEW YORK TYPEWRITER.

It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter.

JAPAN'S A SUNDAY WORLD.

Exhibition Now Being Held in Japan, and Shows New Light on a Strange Country.

JANVRIN'S SECOND SHOT.

An Ex-Policeman Again Unsuccessfully Attempts Suicide.

Daniel M. Janvrin is locked up in the Tremont station-house, charged with shooting himself. He married a servant employed at 1000 Washington avenue last Monday night, and because one of the boarders made some remarks reflecting on Mrs. Janvrin's fidelity, he shot her.

THE STORY OF A PRETTY NEW YORK TYPEWRITER.

It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter.

JAPAN'S A SUNDAY WORLD.

Exhibition Now Being Held in Japan, and Shows New Light on a Strange Country.

JANVRIN'S SECOND SHOT.

An Ex-Policeman Again Unsuccessfully Attempts Suicide.

Daniel M. Janvrin is locked up in the Tremont station-house, charged with shooting himself. He married a servant employed at 1000 Washington avenue last Monday night, and because one of the boarders made some remarks reflecting on Mrs. Janvrin's fidelity, he shot her.

THE STORY OF A PRETTY NEW YORK TYPEWRITER.

It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter. It was a story of a pretty New York typewriter.